In 1945, Europe thought to have defeated Fascism, but nationalist, fascist, antisemitic and xenophobic ideologies still remain alive in daily political rhetoric. The constant voicing of xenophobic messages in media and politics causes 'normalisation' and leads to 'acceptance' of hate. Society keeps silent. People become bystanders to their own fate and to the fate of the whole European society. So, what can we do about this? We can Think. See. Listen. Speak. Protest. And Remember!

Every year around 9 November, the UNITED network coordinates the International Day Against Fascism and Antisemitism and calls upon the international community to bring an end to hate. We ask NGOs, community organisations, schools, local municipalities - and you - to join forces and confront hate with direct action. Organise activities, join the Facebook page, check the website, support others, spread the message and join the 9 November campaign to UNITE against fascism and antisemitism.
